Stranahan's Colorado Whiskey is one of the first whiskeys made in Colorado since Prohibition ended. Master Distiller Rob Dietrich sources primarily local Colorado malted barley for fermentation and distillation, and the spirit is then cut with Rocky Mountain water.

Founded in 2008, Infinite Monkey Theorem predominantly uses grapes from Colorado's Western Slope, and the results are top-notch, well-respected accessible wines that are created in a 29,000 square foot urban winery located in Denver's River North Art District.
